

ESHP7 draft programme

Talks

[each talk to be allocated a slot of 30 minutes, to include either 5 or 10 minutes for questions]

Adèle Jatteau	On the edge: procedural vs. representational analyses of Ancient Greek
András Cser, Beatrix Oszkó & Zsuzsa Várnai	The Middle Hungarian raising and merger of long front vowels: phonological change vs. paradigmatic effects
Anthony Yates	Stress and cyclicity in Hittite and its diachronic development
Brady A. Dailey	Northern Pomo tonogenesis and steps towards a diachronic typology of 'lexical pitch-accent'
Chenming Gao	Learning from loss: when the life cycle reverses
Deepthi Gopal	Georgian pre-sonorant syncope is no longer phonological
Dominique Bobeck	The paradox of cyclicity in Syriac
Donald Alasdair Morrison	The diachronic stability of syllable weight in Scottish Gaelic
Han Lee & Myriam Lapierre	Reconstructing Proto-Northern-Jê coronal obstruents: evidence for a pull-chain in Suyá
Jade Sandstedt & Patrik Bye	West Nordic umlaut, Old Norwegian vowel harmony, and the life cycle
Joshua Booth & Aditi Lahiri	Initial geminates and pertinacity
Juliusz Cęcelewski, Cédric Gendrot & Jane Stuart-Smith	Does coarticulation play a role at the end of a sound change? A real-time acoustic-phonetic study of historical Polish ł-vocalisation
Katherine Russell	The typology of contrastive nasality: the case of Kwa
Muhammad Rehan	Synchronic phonetic variation drives diachronic sound change: further evidence from pre-nasal raising in Young Avestan
Sampsa Holopainen	The emergence of the geminate affricate *cc in Proto-Finnic as a problem of historical phonology
Tobias Scheer	Rule crossing in the lexical variation period
Yury Makarov & Bert Vaux	Final Vowel Lowering as final strengthening

Posters

[to be split into two sessions – one on Monday 11.45-12.45, one on Tuesday 11.45-12.45]

Alan Avdagic	Proto-Mayan *ŋ was a voiced dorsal fricative /ɣ/: a typological approach to reconstruction
Aldo Berríos Castillo	[k]-allomorphs in Mapudungun
Arlind Fazliu & Brikena Liko	Walker revisited: stress preservation from Latin to Present-Day English
Christa Schneider	The devil's in the difference: tracking phonological change in witch trial papers
Élisa Marcadet	Litteral evidence of the vanishing Old English [y] in Middle English
Fabian Zuk	Inheritance, change and diffusion at the Margins of Gallo-Romance
Fae Hicks	The fates of Latin ille : a tale of syntax and phonology
Jahnavi Narkar	A probabilistic typology of Proto-Indo-European stops
John Clayton	The chronology of Indo-European *wr > *ru metathesis
Juan D. Cancel	The diachronic asymmetry of nasal apocope between nominal and verbal paradigms in Nganasan
Lindon Dedvukaj	Navigating the labyrinth of Proto-Albanian: evidence from an isolated dialect region
Maria Zielenbach & Matthew Sung	Using computational methods to find triggers for sound change in small data sets
Michela Russo	Feminine plural -a in Italo-Romance: phonological, syntactic, and diachronic evidence for structural transparency over allomorphy
Monique Tangelder	The grammar of Old English alliterative verse: verb-second in metrical contexts
Nicholas Hardie Lawrence & Fae Hicks	It's not historical: a Logical Phonology analysis of the Scottish Vowel Length Rule
Patrick Honeybone	Delaryngealisation
Patrik Bye	A templatic account of three Middle Scots alliterative poems
Pavel Iosad	The life cycle of Slavic mid vowel alternations
Richard West-Soley	Listening to the broken record: enregisterment, discursive evidence, and the 'bad data' problem in historical phonology
Ryan Sandell & Hang Liu	When opacified allophony creates rule inversion and variable derived-environment effects: velar-palatal alternations in Sanskrit
Savio Meyase	Historical reconstruction of tones and a look at tonogenesis
Shobha Satyanath	Rise of a distinct phonological system within Eastern Indo-Aryan
Sixing Cui & Zhigang Yin	A study of the prosodic motivation and registerial mechanisms of the neutral tone in Mandarin Chinese
Sonja Dahlgren	Vowel raising in a contact-linguistic and typological context: evidence from Egyptian Greek iotacism
Tatiana Reid	Echoes of lost segments: the evolution of floating prosodic units in Nuer (West Nilotic)
Vendela Ruby	East Germanic is a valid subgrouping
Ziche Chen	Subtypes of unconditioned tonal merger in historical Viet-Muong phonology