What’s this course all about?
People use language in context, yet linguistic models of language structure and processing tend to focus on language in isolation, all else being equal. The focus of this course is on charting what it means for all else not to be equal in order to better understand how language works in larger discourse contexts. We will consider the organization of language above the sentence-level, considering a variety of cross-sentence discourse phenomena (implicature, information structure, pronoun interpretation, ellipsis, coherence) and the types of models that have been proposed to capture cross-sentence relationships (philosophical, computational, and psycholinguistic). We will explore a variety of approaches and discuss their theoretical assumptions, methodological tools, and empirical strengths and weaknesses.

Readings
There is no required textbook. All readings will be available on Learn. Listed readings are to be read BEFORE class in order to support class discussion. In addition to assigned chapters and articles, material will be posted on Learn to be read in anticipation of class discussion. This material covers content that in previous years was presented as lectures. This is the first year that class time will be entirely devoted to exercises and discussion and will not follow a lecture format.

Aims and objectives
At the end of the course, you will be able to:

- Determine the inferential reasoning that gives rise to implicatures in context
  (How do people read between the lines?)

- Analyze discourse structure
  (Do the sentences in a discourse form a tree structure just like the words in a sentence?)

- Classify, for each utterance in a dialogue or a text, what information is given and new (How does the growing common ground between speakers change the forms they use?)

- Identify the pragmatic constraints that license particular syntactic constructions
  (When is passive voice appropriate?)

- Apply models of coreference and ellipsis to naturally occurring data
  (How do listeners interpret ambiguous or missing words?)

- Critically discuss psycholinguistic studies of pragmatic phenomena
  (What predictions emerge from theoretical pragmatics and how do you test them?)
Prerequisites
UG students must have passed LEL2A. The course is open to all PG students.

Policies

1. Keep up with class. Attending class is expected of everyone. Readings should be completed prior to the set of classes for which they are intended.

2. Hand in your work on time. Each homework is due at noon on the day on which it is to be handed in. Submit it via TurnItIn on Learn.

3. Working together on HW is fine/encouraged but final write-ups must be your own. You may discuss assignments together with other students (and certainly solicit acceptability/felicity judgments from native speakers), but you must hand in separate writeups.

4. Exam The final exam constitutes the majority of your mark. In the exam, any collaboration will be considered a violation of the university’s policy on academic integrity (http://www.ed.ac.uk/schools-departments/academic-services/students/undergraduate/discipline/academic-misconduct). All violations will be reported to the School Academic Misconduct Officer.

Extensions

Students are expected to monitor their workload, be aware of all deadlines and prepare accordingly. Extension requests should be submitted before the submission deadline. They must be submitted to the Teaching Office for approval, and must include details of the assessment(s) affected and length of extension requested, together with supporting evidence if required. Other than in exceptional circumstances, extensions will only be granted in cases of illness or family emergency. If an extension of more than one week is requested, students must provide medical evidence and/or discuss the request with the Student Support Officer.

The Teaching Office will email the student to tell them whether the extension has been granted. If students feel that they have been unfairly denied an extension they should make a case to the special circumstances committee for the removal of late submission penalties at the examination board.

Extension requests due to time mismanagement, personal computing/printing problems or ignorance of deadline will not be accepted. Retrospective extensions will not be granted. However, late submission penalties may be waived if a student requests an extension on the day of the submission deadline but cannot get medical evidence until some days later. Extensions include weekends and University holidays.

Students with Adjustment Schedules

Extension requests from students with adjustment schedules that allow ‘short notice extensions’ will be treated sympathetically where possible. Students should however be prepared to give a reason for the extension request; simply citing an adjustment schedule is not an adequate reason. If students are seeking extensions for more than one week, they must provide medical evidence and/or discuss the request with the Student Support Officer.

Any student with a documented disability needing accommodations is requested to speak directly to the Student Disability Service (SDS; 3rd floor, Main Library, 0131 650 6828) and to the instructor as early as possible. All discussions will remain confidential.
